Budget Action description:

This green sheet includes two separate actions:

The first would add a revenue-backed assistant city attorney position in the Law Department to provide dedicated staffing for disputed infraction hearings at the Seattle Municipal Court. Due to past budget reductions, the Law Department has been relying on a mix of interns, volunteers and some limited time from city prosecutors to staff these hearings. A full-time attorney dedicated to these hearings would cost $85,000, but is likely to generate more than this amount in incremental fine revenues, relative to current levels. For the purposes of this green sheet, I have taken a conservative approach and assumed that the increased revenue will just offset the additional cost.

Given that the addition of this position is predicated on the additional revenue, this green sheet includes the following proviso to ensure that the additional funding provided to the Law Department will be used to staff infraction hearings:

“Of the appropriation in the 2012 budget for the Law Department’s Criminal BCL, $85,000 is appropriated solely for infraction enforcement and may be spent for no other purpose.”

The second action included in this green sheet creates an unfunded full-time paralegal position in the Law Department's Civil Division to assist in collections enforcement. With the downturn in the economy, the number of unpaid debt referrals from both SPU and City Light has increased. Given the volume of referrals, staffing limitations at the Law Department have led to an increase overtime from $2,500 to $5,000 to $10,000 in the threshold for referrals that are actively pursued. The Law Department is currently working with the utilities to develop an agreement under which the cost of additional legal staff would be paid by the utilities through an MOU. The proposed paralegal position would be assigned to pursue additional collections. The unfunded paralegal position authorized here would only be filled if such agreements could be finalized and funding was secured from SPU and/or City Light. If such agreements are not reached, the vacant position would be abrogated in one of the quarterly supplemental ordinances that Council will consider in 2012.
